

Turkey facing Its future

Analysis and Perspectives of Constitutional Referendum

Edited by Marcello Ciola

April 2017

m | a mediterranean affairs

Dossier No.
01/2017

Turkey Facing Its Future: Analysis and Perspectives of Constitutional Referendum

edited by Marcello Ciola

Contents

Introduction (p.4)
Does the Winner Take All? Preliminary Thoughts on the Legal Content of the Turkish Constitutional Referendum on Presidentialism (p.11)
The content of the reform (p.13)
Concluding remarks: is it an undemocratic reform? (p.19)
Political and Social Debate on Constitutional Referendum(p.31)
Erdoğan's first successful attempt to build up a State inspired from "religious values": the AK Party (p.36)
The contribution of civil society and NGOs' action to the political debate (p.41)
A double-edge sword: the social media and their role in the referendum campaign (p.45)
Changing the Constitution – Changing Turkey's Identity? (p.52)
The parliamentary debate (p.54)
The evolution of Turkey's political identity (p.59)
The rise of the AKP (p.63)
Conclusion (p.68)
Never mind Mustafa Kemal: here's Recep Tayyip Erdoğan (p.70)
It's a long way to the top (if you want a presidential rule) (p.72)
And out come the Grey Wolves (p.77)
The dissent of woman (p.80)
Another state of emergency (p.84)
The International Implication of Constitutional Referendum (p.92)
Comprehend Domestic Political Processes to Understanding Foreign Policy (p.94)
A "Brand New Turkey" (p.101)
The Regional Security Issue, the Constitutional Referendum and Kurdish Question (p.104)
Perspectives and prevision of regional and international changes (p.107)
Conclusion (p.110)
Conclusions (p.113)
References (p.117)
About the Authors (p.127)